Draft Registration Too Slow in N. Y., Help Needed

New York, Sept. 1 (#)—The government is asking employers for help in registering New York city druft eligibles, Col. Candler Cobb, city director of Selective Service, announced the plan yesterday.

Because of a shortage of clerks, he said, the registration is "going too slowly" at city draf centers.

To speed the process, he is calling on firms that employ more than 50 draft-age workers to set up registration desks in their places of business.

He is asking employers to select one or two of their workers to act as draft registrars.

He said 16,232 men born in 1923 signed for the draft yesterday—almost 4,000 short of the expected 20,000. Col. Candler Cobb, city direc-

FARM PRICE SUPPORTS

This is a year of presidential election and a year of prospective bumper crops. These two blessings of democracy and of nature add interest to the speculation on what the various candidates are going to say, and the successful ones are going to do, about farm

The argument is not about the necessity of support prices, for there can't be a sensible argument on that score. The question rather is what is adequate and safe, and what offers the best protection for everyone, farmer, food handler, and consumer. It is a question that demands intelligent study divorced from politics. But divorces of that sort are hard to get in a year of politicking.

First of all there is something called the "farm vote." Like all such occupational, class, racial or religious "votes" it is not something that is delivered in a package. Yet our political history proves that the farmers' prosperity or lack of it is reflected in their ballots. A fallure to promise and try to deliver is something beyond the most nightmarish dreams of national political :planners.

There is also something called the "labor vote." This, as we said, is no package job either. But the spokesmen for union labor are setting up some loud cries about high prices. And these can't be ignored any more than can the sentiments of the farmers.

The farm population of voting age today is somewhere around 23,000,000. Union membership is in the neighborhood of 15,500,000. That is not counting wives and husbands of union members and others in the family of voting age. And of course union membership, though vocal, is only a fraction of the non-farm public also distressed about high

Among the non-farm, non-union public are industrialists and businessmen, large and small, who are anxious to see food prices brought down a few pegs. For food prices are the big item in high prices. They reflect themselves in labor costs, which in turn affect our entire commerce.

Many Americans today don't like the thought of their tax dollars being spent to support some super-abundant food items at prices that they can ill-afford to pay. Fewer, probably, realize that support prices are particularly necessary in years of great abundance.

All surplus food can't be stored or shipped, and sometimes there is a shortage of storage and shipping space for that which can be.

and shipping space for that which can be, Without some support for perishables in an overcrowded market a lot of farmers could go from prosperity to something approaching disaster. And low farm incomes make themselves felt through our entire commerce the same as high food costs do.

So the question about support prices is how much and when. And the hope is that those who have to answer it will realize that you can't please everybody, and so will fall back on good sense for the solution.

PSYCHIATRY AND WAR

One way to cure war would be by psychiatry, says Prof. John M. Murray of Boston University, speaking before the International Conference on Mental Hygiene. War represents an attempt at mental readjustment, he says, a process often accompanied by impulsive destructiveness.

Just what Dr. Murray has in mind is hard to say. It needed no more than a layman's knowledge of mental states to tell that Hitler was in a dangerously disturbed mental condition, and that many other Nazis were neurotic or otherwise emotionally upset.

Knowing all that did not prevent the war.

Just as it is necessary to make a full study of the Nye Committee and its nefarious campaign to disarm America, so it is essential to make a full study of the "One World" propaganda which first employed Wendell Wilkie and is now using Henry Wallace as its mouthplece. Who and what was the inspiration for making love of America a shameful affection? Who and what stimulated this disagree of making the country a more provincial.

shameful affection? Who and what stimulated this disease of making this country a mere province in a world that lives upon it?

Let us go back to Wendell Willkie as we need to go back to Dr. William A. Wirt and to Gerald P. Nye to understand what happened.

Wendell Willkie appears in New York as a public utilities lawyer with a charming personality. The Republicans had in 1932 and 1936 taken a bad beating at the hands of Franklin D. Roosevelt and elements in their party, particularly the businessmen, were looking for a candidate who had no liabilities because he had done nothing in public life. They hit upon Wendell Willkie, whose main support came from what Henry Wallace calls Wall Street, At the Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1940, Willkie was nominated and he set off on a terrific campaign—which lost votes as it poceeded.

Wilkie was defeated. He had no political past. He was not a Republican leader. He had no job to go back to. It was assumed that he was through. to go back to. It was assumed that he was through. However, with astonishing suddenness, Willkie developed a new role. He became the forefront of "One World." He traveled the world in an airplane, landing here and there to dine with some ruler or to speak his piece. Accompanying him was Joseph-Barnes, then with the New York Herald Tribune, now editor of The New York Star, formerly PM.

After this trip, Willkie's book, "One World," appeared, which was promoted with an energy rarely provided even important literature. Also, Freedom House was organized, which became the center of peared, which was promoted with an energy rarely provided even important literature. Also, Freedom House was organized, which became the center of a vast internationalist propaganda. At about that time, a large number of propaganda organizations were organized which were joined together by interlocking directorates and by a sort of holding company in Freedom House. Apparently all these organizations existed to stimulate hatred for Hitler, but none of them conducted any form of activity which in any way stirred a deep love for America. It was "humanity" and "the world" and later "The United Nations" that Americans were to love, but not the United States of America. After Willkie died, the work went on unabated, in fact at an accelerated speed, indicating how essential he was to it. Some phases of it were undertaken by the P.A.C. and that queer organization of artists and writers, I.C.C.A.S.P., who suddenly emerged as politicians under the leadership of the semiptor, Jo Davidson. The entire enterprise, at all stages, in all its various organizational manifestations, was always adequately financed. Many of them are still in existence and still have ample funds.

"I could not have nominated an extreme progressive or an extreme conservative but I could by a turn of the hand have thrown the nomination to either Taft or Hughes."

There was an incident in which Mr. Roosevelt, while president, had endeavored through the use of patronage in an appointment of Archie Sanders as Internal Revenue collector, to influence the votes of two assemblymen in the New York State Legislature. Even though it was intended to be of help to Governor Hughes, the latter refused the assistance because, while he wanted and needed the votes, he didn't want them that way. The late Henry L. Stoddard, New York newspaper editor, writes of this rebuke of Roosevelt by Hughes in a book entitled "As I Knew Them: Presidents and Politics from Grant to Coolidge":

"It is commonplace to say of any man that there are none like him, but it is so true of flughes than t cannot help snying it. By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority Written for NEA Service

I have often said that the best oridge in the country is played in the restaurants in New York. Between sessions of a tournament or after the evening session, the gang will drop in at a restaurant, and of course bridge hands are the topic of conversation.

At Trader Tom's steak house in New York the other night, we were talking about false-card plays. We all agreed that the false-card in today's hand should not have fooled anyone. It was not have fooled anyone. It was further agreed that game should not be made, either in a suit or no trump, but nevertheless it is the type of hand on which a game should be bid.

West opened the eight of diamonds and East won with the ace. South played the queen. Bear in mind that North and South had hid both spades and hearts. The oid both spades and hearts, diamond opening looked good to diamond opening looked good to East, and he was anxious to establish the suit while he still had the ace of clubs for re-entry. There was a possibility that he had the heart suit stopped, and being void in spades, he hoped that his partner had that suit stopped.

With all this on his mind, he let the cluen of diamonds, fool him.

"AND FAMILY"

An air mail special delivery letter from a bride-to-be tells me: "We have just finished addressing more than half of our wedding invitations on many of which we wrote 'Mr. and Mrs. and family.' We believed that this was the correct way to explain that one invitation was intended to everyone living under the same roof. A friend of Mother's, whose social experience is outstanding and who came in today to help us with the addressing, strongly disapproved of adding 'and family' when enclosing an engraved form. She wants us to be more envelopes to send to however many others 'the family' in each house includes. If you agree with her, will you please tell us which members, other than Mr. and Mrs. can share an invitation and which must have envelopes addressed to themselves alone?"

If your community is hypercritirect way to explain that one in-themselves alone?"

If your community is hypercritical of formality, I agree with the friend's advice. But if the community is friendly and informal, your own idea was quite right.

It is true that according to the exections of formality. "and formality."

exactions of formality, "and fam-ily" is not correct. But if the question is wether it is courteous and friendly to write "and famand friendly to write "and family" beneath the names of relatives and neighbors, it would be enviling not to answer, "Yes."

Tonight's Schedule Port Chester at Kingston, 8 p. m. Stamford at Waterbury Poughkeepsie at Bridgeport

They all laughed when that man in the advertisement sat down to play the piano . . . but he fooled them. Last night at municipal stadium, they all just wondered when the P.A. system announced Francisco Sostre as the Colonial hurler in the opener of the crucial series against Port Chester Clippers.

But he fooled them, too, with a brilliant four-hit, 3-0 shutout of the Clippers to keep the Colonials in a flat-footed tie with the Bridgeport Bees in the torrid battle for fourth place in the league playoffs.

One Man to Third The quiet, nervous Cuban flinger, who had failed to distinguish himself in several previous appearances, twirled one of the top games of the season. After a first liming scare, he was invincible and the league leaders were able to move only one runner as far as third. He walked only one batter and fanned five.

Led by Ralph Matzer and Manager Eddle Kobesky, the Colonials touched up Bob Fritz, a 15-game winner, for 10 safeties and the stadium were the two base hits off Kobesky's bats, . . . They cracked light bolts of lightning.

A single by Ralph Matzer, Mchamara's sacrifice and Paul Dunlop's long fly put the Colonials ahead 1-0 in the fifth and a few seconds later Kobesky sent a screaming line drive into left field for the second tally.

*******

The shocking news of young Andy Radtke's tragic and untimely leath stunned and saddened the baseball fans of Kingston and Ulster county. This heartbreaking incident ranks with the great baseball tragedies of our time in Kingston. Our condolences to his father and mother, who were so keenly interested and wrapped up in Andy's baseball future. For them this is indeed a cruel blow of fate.

Andy Radtke passed prematurely into the Great Beyond thinking to the last of his beloved game of baseball. He loved the game so much that, in his death throcs, his young mind, wandering and lost in abyss of sedatives, sought baseball news as a refuge from the pain that wracked his body.

 Of Baseball to the End . . . Two of the last questions that Andy Radtke asked on this earth

Two of the last questions that Andy Radtke asked on this earth were:

"Mom, did the Dodgers win today?
Later his mind wandered to another baseball thought—the Saturday night kid game at municipal stadium where he was to pitch three limings for the K.A.A. Junior All Stars against the Yankee "Stars of Tomorrow"—and he asked his mother:

"Mom, will I be able to pitch Saturday night?"

These two questions asked in the darkest moments of the young man's life intensified the stark drama of a death vigil in a hospital room. Andy's mother wept and prayed that her son be spared his life. Even as a cripple, she reasoned, he could at least watch the game he toved so much. But by now the fate that was his by divine providence already was about to throw that fatal third strike past the young star. Thus what might have been a glorious pitching future for young Andy is shrouded in speculation and his heroic pitching feats in the City Baseball lengue rest on memories that will fade and weaker as time goes on.

• His Teammates Loved Him . . .

Radtke's boyish enthusiasm for baseball was contagious to all his teammates. We had gotten to know him only recently when we asked him if he would like to pitch for the K.A.A. Juniors in the annual game. His response was one of jubilation and appreciation. He thanked us several times for the honor of being selected. At the time we told

"We should thank you, Andy. By your record you certainly deserve selection on the team."

Later when Coach Bud Culloton arranged a couple of practice sessions, Radtke made the trip from Samsonville. He pitched part of the game last Sunday against the Downtown Republican Club. He was impressive as usual. When the game was over, Coach Culloton said to him:

"You won't have to report tomorrow night, Andy. You have carned

But Radike wanted to play, every day if he could,
"That's all right Mr. Culloton," he answered, "I'll be glad to come down and pitch batting practice tomorrow night."

Definite Signs of Greatness . . .

If you examine Radthe's overall record for the 1948 City League season you'll detect signs of greatness that was just developing. He appeared in 88 innings of 12 ball games, yielding only 58 hits, 34 runs. His control was uncanny—only 15 walks in 88 innings and he struck out the magnificient total of 111 batters, well over the average of one out the magnificient total of 111 batters, wenever the average of per inning.

Radtke fashioned a pair of two-hitters—against West Shore and Wiltwyck—and a one-hitter against the West Shore. He recled off six straight victories at the tail end of the season and was regarded as the circuit's best hurler. He personally lifted the Stauble Bakery from the doldrums to within an cyclash of the Shaughnessy playoffs.

America is a great country because of kids like Andy Radtke. He was honest, sincere and enthusiastic about his work and his play. But above all he liked baseball as all real red-blooded American boys love the game. He loved it so well that he went to his final entantly of the should be shoul

Rice Tops at Rhinebeck

A jammed packed crowd at Rhinebeck Speedway last night saw Johnny Rice, hard driving Woodmont, Conn., midget driver capture the 25-lap main event in a race that saw one of the most thrilling Bnishes of the entire season. His time was 5:59:22. Dutch Scaheffer, one of the nation's top midget drivers followed with only a half car length separating him and the winner. Stan Disbrow, Poughkeepsie's favorite finished third and Ray Nestor of the Bronx took down fourth spot.

The main event was only one lap old when Steve McGrath, the "Submarine Man" from Stamford, Conn., went into a spin at the lower turn and before stopping rolled over several times with the entire field with the exception of Rice who started last all tangling up in one of the worst crashes of the season. The race was immediately stopped and for several minutes the huge crowd stood in silence as McGrath lay pinned under the pileup. He was rushed to the Northern Dutchess Health Center at Rhinebock where it was reported he was suffering from those cutts and huises.

Health Center at Knineocck where it was reported he was suffering from shock, cuts and bruises.

The restart found Johny Rice getting the pole in a single file start as he was the only one not involved in the accident and he immediately took off with Dutch Schaeffer and Stan Disbrow hot on his heels. However, the only threatening gestures was by Schaeffer who gradually closed the gap and at the finish line was almost on top of Rice and the had everyone signifing from start to finish.

in a race that had everyone standing from start to finish.

Larry Shurter of West Shokan grabbed a qualifying position by taking third in the second event of the evening but just as he crossed the finish line he went into a spin and his car was finished for the evening.

Next week's card will feature Ted Tappet of Manhassett, one of the hottest midget drivers in the east appearing together with Schaeffer, Rice. Shurter, the Disbrow brothers, Johnny Carpenter and many other top stars. The first green flag will drop at 8:30 sharp.

Major League Roundup

By JOB REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Billy Meyer, Pittsburgh's freshman manager, is the talk of the baseball world today as his "pickup" Pirates defy the critics and challenge the league leaders.

Manned largely by castoffs, and generally picked to wind up in the second division. Mayer's bold Buccaneers have proved a bigger surprise than even Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. They're in third place only two games off the pace.

The rags-to-riches Pirates are practically the same team that finished in a tie for last place in the National League in 1947.

Nip Ciants 5-4

Nip Giants 6-4

The Pirates picked up a game and a half on the Dodgers yesterday, nosing out the New York Giants. 5-4, while the cellar-dwelling Chicago Cubs upaset the Brooks twice. 3-0 and 7-2.

Pittaburgh remained two games behind the runner-up Braves who climbed within two percentage points of Brooklyn by defeating the Reds in Cincinnati, 3-1. The fourth place Cardinals also moved within two games of the top, whipping the Philadelphia Phils in St. Louis. 5-0. The Cards, however, were two points below the Pirates as they've won and lost three more than Pittsburgh.
